Description

[1] Start from the free public car park in Sidbury (grid ref. SY139919) and walk to the main road where turn right. Pass the Red Lion pub and the church and take a footpath on the right signed 'to White Cross'. Follow path along field edge and through a meadow to a gate at a lane. Turn left and reach a lane T junction where turn left.

St Giles Church is one of the most interesting in the County. There is a Saxon crypt, and a rare example of Norman diaper work can be seen on the outside of the east wall. Green Lane track follows the watershed between Sweetcombe, Roncombe and Sid Valleys.

From the stile there are good views of Sidbury and the hills to the west. Bald Hill, Ball Hill, Evergreen Hill and Castle Hill which is surmounted by the large Iron Age hill fort from which Sidbury takes its name. Immediately west of the village you can see the red brick building of Sidbury Manor, nestling in a fold of the hill.
